The book presents for the first time a detailed comprehensive and realistic picture of the political and institutional realities of northern India during medieval times from 750 A.D. to 1200 A.D. The book opens with the survey of the original sources-epigraphical and other texts that reveal the context of the political and administrative Purification of the Indian Polity and Administration of the Period.

The book entitled Encyclopaedia of Untouchables, Ancient, Medieval and Modern compiled in 2 volumes witnesses to the fact that how the Brahminical ideology used to behave with the poor people of the father which is totally unbearable to a normal person, even though they used to clean the cities, latrines, skin of the dead animals which were owned by the Brahmanas. Hence, the Dalt literature is not a simple literature, it is associated with a movement to bring about a change in the society by working personally to realize the basic facts of the life, but Brahmanas are not only the most influential people in their literature, worked on the basis of their own belief and their own belief

The present book is an attempt to delineate 'The Status of Women in the Epics'. Many scholars have also made a study of their status in the legal literature of the times. Only few attempt mainly deals with sexual life in Epics. In this book the original sources drawn with anti-caste or untouchable thinker like Buddha, Ved Vyas, Valmiki, Rautabudin An Aebirk, Balban, Balban, Firoz Shah Tughlaq, Barani the great writer, Amir Timurat, Sultan Sikandar of Kashmir, Zain-ul-Abidin, Mira1/2d artist, Babar, Babar, Dara1/2b, Guru Nanak, Kabir, Phule, Dr. B.R. Ambedkar, many more as its signposts.

The book, 'Historiography of Bh1/2 bha1/2a', is important to understand events and lifestyle of seventh century. Today history is not only chronology. Now a day history means the description of people, their socio-economic scenario and their role in the society of those times. Many scholars have described the aspects of life more important than chronology. B1/2ha1/2a has exposed every important aspects related to life of people. His descriptions are also proved by contemporary historical sources. Clearly it can be said that India of seventh century could not be understood without descriptions of B1/2ha1/2a. Thus B1/2ha1/2a is not only writer but also a historian.

The word Babri was literally used to define something aboriginal, out of sense or mad. Three instances mentioned in Babar-Nama support this. Babars jurnal is replete with precise detail with a telling image or idiom as a bud resembling a sheep's heart, fell like water on fire which lingers in the readers mind long after the event or anecdote has receded. Few of the phrases and words used by the Babar-Nama are now part of everyday language in India and Pakistan as Namak Haram means lack of truthworthiness, hamesha means always, bahishshin means gain, main means plain area, jahaz means charming and the most important, which is of our use here, is Babri/Babur/Bavala means related to unhealthy mental state or mad or abandoned or one who is abnormal. Babar writes about his infatration, after his marriage in March AD 1500, for a boy as. In those days I discovered myself a strange inclination - no, a mad infatration for a boy in the camp of Babur. His name was Bavara as he was of raging and flickering nature and Babar himself became Bavara or crazy for him to attain his sexual proximity. That is why the term Babri Mosque is specially used only for the construction that was done according to Mughal architecture because it was made for Hindus not for Muslims. Babri Mosque means Mosques of infidels-insane Hindus.

Changing Faunal Ecology in the Thar Desert - dedicated to the fond memory of Professor Dr. Ishwar Prakash, the legendary rodentologist - is a unique melange of scientific investigations on diverse ecological groups pertaining to different climatic zones, from very dry to humid areas, including the semi-arid to the tropical zones. The book provides a crystal clear proof of the constantly changing behavioural ecology of animals in the Thar Desert which has been under an ever increasing impact of, among others, the human activities. The book is based on the results of the 1982-1987 project of the India Gandhi Nagar Project (INGP), one of the world's largest wildlife studies. The change is discernible not only in structure and distribution of animals but in their resting, foraging, breeding and, as evident in case of parasites, the extent of parasitism as well as pathognomically. Finally, this book offers the first ever detailed document of the wildlife and parasitic infection changes in different animal groups in the Thar Desert a phenomenon of enormous significance for both conservation management and diversity inventory activities of its faunal wealth.

The Hindu Samskaras give expression to aspirations and ideals of the Hindus. They aim at securing the welfare of the performer and developing his personality. They go back to a holy ancient time of a far distant past. Many of the Samskaras, the Brahminical organisational customs and characters have already disappeared or have got changed to an extent that it is now very difficult to present them in their historical evolution. The present work is a systematic study of the Samskaras enjoined to be performed at the various epochs in life of an individual from conception to cremation. The author has cited parallel editions in other religions to show that they are universal and have a recognised place in ancient cultures and are still represented within the limits of modern society. The book is a concise, yet systematic presentation, giving a historical perspective, a philosophical background, a logical presentation, and practical utility and intention. This work discusses the source, meaning, number, purpose and the constituents of Samskaras grouped under five heads: prenatal, national, educational, ritualual, and funeral. Besides being a landmark in Hindu culture, it presents patterns of life based on historical, spiritual and humanistic values.

Swami Vivekananda: The Journey of a Spiritual Entrepreneur details the events of Vivekananda's life, encompassing his transformation from a nameless wanderer to the most renowned representative of Hinduism of all times. In this book, we come across the Vivekananda who not only created history by delivering the Chicago Lecture in 1893 but also established the Ramakrishna Order through an unparalleled entrepreneurial spirit which brought to light the best qualities as a decisive leader and an excellent communicator who reached out globally to convey the message of the Vedanta. These attributes of Vivekananda's personality have remained largely unexplored in most of the books written on him. This book also maps Hinduisim and its present-day challenges vis-a-vis its attributes in light of Swami Vivekananda's philosophy and brings forth its contemporary relevance in a practical manner for the reader at a time when the world is witnessing crises of the worst kind. It will help both scholars and students into separating factors within humanity. Further, it also contains detailed descriptions of practical approaches to translation that will help students build comprehensive framework for translation of complex texts such as the Vedas and Upanishads. It finally concludes with the Indian media's articulation of Vivekananda's approach on a number of platforms in recent times, to unite humanity despite all its diversity as it is ever more relevant today.

The close relationship between ecosystem and nutrition of people has also made a study of their status in the legal literature of the times. Only few attempt mainly deals with sexual life in Epics. In this book the original sources drawn upon are the two great Epics, the Mahabharata and the Ramayana. The secondary sources are commentaries, translations and dissertations written on these works. In tracing the status of women in the epics, the author has strictly adhered to the conclusions from the evidences gathered from these two great Epics. The very nature of Epic literature is dealt with in detail in

This book portrays the world history in an entirely new landscape which highlights the pace of development of all the major civilizations of the world since the dawn of human history. Mans rational behavior compelled him to search and innovate new things in order to emerge victorious in his struggle for existence, and in the process, he elevated human civilization. But different civilizations developed on different lines. Some were fast initially but later turned static, and some were static initially but later gained momentum to become world leaders, while some were in between. The author has broadly categorized all the world civilizations into seven segments and demonstrated their behavior of development graphically. Indian civilization has been evaluated as initially glorious and highly developed, but later it turned static due to several inherent factors. Anglo-Saxon civilization has been adjudged as initially primitive and after AD 1000 it began to move slowly and later gained pace to become world leader. It has been suggested in the book that Indians should learn from the Anglo-Saxons and should follow their road to development, which has been heavily propelled with scientific and technological innovations and rational thinking since AD 1000.

From his decision to leave school at fifteen to roam the world, to his recollections of life as a hobo on the Southern Pacific Railroad, as a cattle skinner in Texas, as a merchant seaman in Singapore and the West Indies, and as an itinerant bare-knuckled prizefighter across small town America, here is Louis L'Amour's memoir of his lifelong love affair with learning—from books, from yondering, and from some remarkable men and women—that shaped him as a storyteller and as a man. Like classic L'Amour fiction, Education of a Wandering Man mixes authentic historical research and the author's own recollections of life on the range with moving personal reflections on the power of books to shape a life.
